

“Personal coaching from Missy has been a transformational experience for me. I love that each session is different, and she never has a pre-set agenda of what she wants to talk about – it’s all about YOU! One day, our conversation ended up around the strategy of asking impactful questions. She had great suggestions about how to phrase questions to make them effective, how to ask fact-finding follow up questions, and we even created a few questions that I could implement directly in my profession. When I returned to my office that day, I asked new clients several of the questions Missy and I had developed, and the relationship built that afternoon was like nothing I had experienced before. My clients shared personal information that not only helped me to understand them, but also helped them to understand each other better. The simple art of questions is only one example of how valuable Missy can be in taking your personal and professional skills to the next level. I strongly recommend entrusting Missy as a personal coach. Her passion is contagious, and her knowledge is endless.”

Have a great weekend!
